

Patent Prosecution and Counseling

We take a creative approach to patent protection. While other firms push applications through the patent office, our experienced and talented intellectual property (IP) attorneys first collaborate with clients to understand their business goals. Drawing from this insight, we create and implement effective patent development and protection strategies that are tailored to our clients' needs in a global marketplace.

Our Silicon Valley office is near the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) Silicon Valley regional office and surrounded by some of the most innovative companies in the world. Our California-based headquarters make it easy and seamless to connect with the Pacific Rim, and we are engaged night and day with those regions.

We create and implement effective patent development and prosecution strategies that are tailored to our clients' needs in a global marketplace. Members of our IP and patent attorney team have had successful careers in a variety of tech industries, at USPTO, in academic research and beyond. Our diverse backgrounds allow us to be nimble and creative to achieve your desired results.

We're techies with law degrees.
